John Stockhouse, the Esquimaux Indian.
Such is the baptismal appellation given to this Indian on his conversion to the christian faith. During his stay in England he was taught the English language, in which he has made a very tolerable proficiency, and his hand writing is legible. In his person he is well made, his complexion a copper color, and he is about five feet six inches in height—he is robust and very active. His canoe, which is now on board the Isabella, sent out to explore the arctic regions, is the same in which he was found at sea. It is fifteen feet long, and entirely formed from the skin of the sea calf—it is sea proof. Each end is pointed, like those boats that ply on the Thames, and which are called runners; but the upper part is open like the deck of a little sloop. In the midst is an opening in which he seats himself, which comes up to his loins—then, by means of a belt made of the intestines of the whale, he fastens round his body the skins that are placed round this opening; and the upper part of his body is so well wrapped up in furs, that only his hands and face are exposed to the water. In this position, with one single paddle, he manoeuvres his canoe either in advance or retreat, with the most surprising swiftness, and far superior to that of any four oared cutter—but what is the most astonishing of all his manoeuvres, he can give to his vessel all the properties of a diving machine, and shelter himself like an aquatic fowl in the most stormy weather—he lays it entirely on one side, and is totally plunged under the water, while his canoe, still following the same direction, has its keel turned upwards—he then goes on the other side, places himself as before—what renders this movement the more extraordinary is, that during all this time he never lets go his paddle. He has shown these manoeuvres on the river to the astonishment of a crowd of spectators. When he throws his dart he never misses his aim, and he throws a long lance to a considerable distance.

AMUSING PERPLEXITIES.

The French translator of Franklin's correspondence has made a true French blunder. Franklin somewhere says, "people imagined that an American was a kind of a Yahoo." Upon this the translator makes the following note, "Yahoo. It must be an animal. It is affirmed that it is the Opposom; but I have not been able to find the word Yahoo in any dictionary of Natural History." This reminds us of an anecdote also founded on one of Swift's admirable works. A gentleman saw a person poring over an Atlas, and seemingly disconcerted by some want of success. Can't you find what you want, said he, or can I assist you? I don't know, was the reply, for I have been looking two hours through all latitudes and longitudes, and cannot discover this curved Lilliput anywhere.

SINGULAR AND SOLEMN EVENT.

We are indebted to an officer, late of his majesty's ship Vengeur, for the following awful narrative, which recently occurred on board that ship, and of which he was an eye witness. A seaman on board his majesty's ship Rivoli appeared to have the greatest possible aversion to the naval service, and was most anxiously looking forward to the ship's being paid off, thinking, like thousands of others, who have perhaps been equally disappointed, that he could easily provide for himself on shore. His shipmates laughed at his constant railings against his profession, and jokingly used to say, we shall see you on board a man of war again one day or other: yet, to which he usually replied that he only hoped if ever he went on board a man of war again for the purpose of entering that God Almighty would instantly strike him dead.—The Revoli was at last paid off at Portsmouth, on her return from the Mediterranean, and it is supposed all the schemes vanished which the unfortunate subject of this memoir had formed. Nothing was now left him but again to embrace his old profession, for which purpose he went on board his majesty's ship Vengeur, captain Alexander, at Portsmouth. Lieut. Blake, the senior Lieutenant of the Vengeur, and also a number of her seamen, formerly served in the Revoli, the latter of which were much surprised at seeing their old shipmate come on board as a volunteer.—Lieutenant Blake glanced over his certificates, and as usual, ordered one of the medical officers to examine him, previous to his being placed on the books—when in the act of turning himself to go below for that purpose, dreadful to relate, he fell down lifeless on the quarter-deck.

HAUD INEXPERTUS LOQUOR.

While books teach us to respect the interests of others, they often make us ungrateful of our own; while they instruct the youthful reader to grasp at social happiness, he grows miserable in detail. That species of philosophy, therefore, is to be regarded with suspicion, which describes the inconveniences of life in such pleasing colors, that the pupil grows enamoured of distress, meets poverty without dread, and fears not its miseries, till he severely feels them.

A youth who has spent his life among books, new to the world, and unacquainted with men, except by philosophical information, may be considered as a being whose mind is filled with the errors of the ingenious, and the whims of the wise.—Utterly unqualified for a journey through life, he sets out with confidence, blunders on with vanity, and finds himself at last involved in perplexities, traduced in character, and irreparably injured in fortune.

He has first learned from books, and then lays it down as a maxim, that all mankind are virtuous or vicious in excess; and he has been long taught to love virtue and detest vice.—Warm, therefore, in his attachments, and steady in his enmities, he treats every creature as a friend or a foe: expects from those he loves unerring integrity, and consigns his enemies to the reproach of wanting every virtue. On this mistaken principle he proceeds, and here begins his disappointments. Upon a closer inspection of human nature, he perceives that he would have done much better to have moderated his friendship, and softened his severity: for he often finds the excellencies of one part of mankind clouded with failings, or perhaps vices—and the faults of the other brightened by some noble virtues.—He finds that most characters are mixed. He now therefore, but too late, perceives that his attachments should have been more cool, and his dislikes less violent: that the truly wise seldom court romantic friendships even with the good, and equally avoid, if they can, the resentment of the unworthy. Every day affords him fresh instances that the bonds of friendship are frequently broken; and that those whom he has treated with disrespect, more than retaliate it, by injuring him to the utmost of their power. At length he is obliged to confess that he has declared war upon the vicious half of mankind, without being able to form an alliance among the virtuous, to take a part in his quarrel.

Our book-taught philosopher, however, is now too far advanced to recede; and, though impaired credit and reduced circumstances are the natural consequences of the many enemies he has created, yet he is resolved to meet them without shrinking. Poverty has been often described by novelists and by philosophers in most charming colors; and even his vanity is touched, in thinking that he will show the world, in himself, one more grand example of patience, fortitude and resignation.—"Come then," (he exclaims) come poverty, for what is there in thee terrible to the wise?—temperance, health, and frugality walk in thy train: cheerfulness and liberty are ever thy companions. Shall any be ashamed of thee, of whom Cincinnatus was not ashamed?—The running brooks, the herbs of the field, can satisfy nature.—"Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long," says Goldsmith. Come then poverty, and let the world gaze with admiration at the true philosopher's resignation.—The goddess appears—for poverty always appears at the first call—but, alas! he finds her the very reverse of the charming figure which books and his imagination had painted. All the fabric of enthusiasm is at once demolished,—and a thousand miseries rise upon his ruins: he sees her in her real form, followed by her real attendants, while scorn, with pointing finger, and contempt and derision, with a thousand insults, move foremost in the hideous procession.—Such does poverty show herself to her new entertainer!

In short, the poor man finds, that notwithstanding his philosophy, he can get nobody to admire or comfort him with applause, while he is dipping upon herbs: that in proportion as he grows more poor, the world turns its back upon him, and avoiding intercourse with him, gives him leave to play the farce of the philosopher in all the dignity of solitude.

"Where by dull fires, and with unjoyous cheer,
He wastes the tedious gloom."

Thus is he forsaken of men, while his fortitude wants the satisfaction even of self-approbation; for he either does not feel his present calamities, and that is natural insensibility—or he disguises his feelings, and that is dissimulation. Spleen now begins to assail him. Not distinguishing in his resentments, he regards all mankind with detestation; and commencing misanthrope, has the liberty of railing at the world in ungratified solitude.

It has been said that he who lives alone is either an angel or a brute.—The censure is too severe, and the praise too extravagant. The discontented being, who retires from society, is generally some very good natured person, who began life without experience, and knew not how to act in his intercourse with mankind, till he finds himself in declining age, with little money, and, of course, with few, or perhaps, no friends.

SEA SERPENT AGAIN.

Capt. Pait, of the Schr Sally, from Providence, at this day, furnishes the following information:—"October 3d, lat 37 12, lon 75 30, fell in with what I, and all on board, believed to be the far-famed Sea Serpent. Ordered out my boat, and with my mate and one seaman, armed with harpoons, hatchets, &c. for our defence, approached with awful feelings, this wonderful animal! Having got so near to him that all deception was at an end—judge, Oh my countrymen! what must our feelings at this critical moment have been—when to our great mortification and utter astonishment, it actually turned out to be a schooner's mast and yard! At a distance, this spectacle was so imposing, and exactly corresponding with the various accounts already published to an astonished world, that had we not approached and examined for ourselves, we should in all human probability, have reported on our arrival in Alexandria, and no doubt sealed the story by a solemn declaration, (had our veracity been called in question) that we had absolutely seen the great Leviathan of the mighty deep." MARYLAND ELECTION RETURNS, Continued.

Mr. Warfield is elected to Congress in the Montgomery district, by a majority of 700 votes over major Peter, the present representative.

Thomas Culbreth is re-elected to Congress from the district composed of Queen Anne, Talbot, and Caroline counties.

The following is a copy of a letter, addressed to the commissioners of customs, dated treasury chambers, to warn English subjects against embarking in the contest between Spain and the South Americans:—"Treasury Chambers, 3d July, 1818. Gentlemen.—The lords commissioners of his majesty's treasury having received a communication from the secretary of state for the foreign department, upon the subject of the preparations making at the different out-ports, and the port of London, for sending out officers and men for the service of the insurgent troops in the Spanish and American provinces; their lordships desire you will direct your officers employed at the different ports to take measures to make known to such persons as have been engaged in this service by any Spanish American agents, or others, that they are hereby rendering themselves obnoxious to the laws, as warned by his royal highness's proclamation of the 27th November, 1817; also that you will adopt such other measures as may be best calculated to prevent any interruption of the strict neutrality declared by the prince regent to be the rule of his conduct in the contest between Spain and her insurgent provinces.

(Signed) GEO. HARRISON.
Commissioners of Customs."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in N. York, to his correspondent in this city, dated 30th Sept. 1818:

"Government is fitting out an expedition to the Rocky Mountains and the North West coast.—It is said to be an expedition of discovery, and is to be conducted by able and scientific men, attended by a military force. A steam boat is now building at Pittsburgh for this expedition, and which it is expected will be able to proceed up the Missouri to its source. It is ascertained that there is a passage through the Rocky Mountains, and at the distance of about 5 miles after you pass the mountains, a branch of the Columbia commences running to the Pacific Ocean. It is intended to take the steam boat to pieces at the mountains, and rebuild her in this river. The expedition is to traverse the continent by water, and to be absent about two years. It will pass the first winter on this side the Rocky Mountains."

It is contemplation, in Canada, to connect the waters of Lake Ontario with those of Lake Erie, by cutting a canal from the head of the twelve mile creek to the Chippewa rivers. Surveys have been made, and the plan found to be neither difficult nor expensive. The two greatest, and almost the only obstructions, in the navigation from the Lakes to Montreal, are the La Chine and Niagara carrying places.—Were these removed, by means of canals, the trade of all the principal settlements on each side of the Lakes and River, would glide into Montreal; nor would the great American canal materially impair the value and importance of this extensive inland commerce. The Duke of Richmond, now Governor of the Canadas, has been on a tour through the provinces, and strongly recommends the undertaking.

HAVING more land in the tract on which I reside than I can take to advantage, I will expose to public sale, on the 5th day of NOVEMBER next, if fair, if not the next fair day, eight hundred acres, divided into lots of two hundred acres; each lot has seventy acres in wood,—of the cleared land one hundred and fifty acres is in clover, and two hundred in rye and wheat. This land is situated ten miles below Alexandria, and is bounded north and east by Accotink creek, which separates the lower part of it from Jonathan Janney's mill, where the Alexandria price can be had for grain.—It is as fertile as any land in the county, and is susceptible of improvement, by clover and plaster, as any I have seen.—Persons wishing to view it will call on the subscriber, living at Cedar Grove, one mile below Janney's mill.
The terms will be one-third of the purchase money in hand, and the balance in two equal annual payments.—The sale will take place at 12 o'clock, on the premises.

Lexington at Public Sale.
On THURSDAY, October 15, if fair, if not, the next fair day, will be offered at public sale, on the premises, Lexington.
THIS estate, containing two thousand three hundred and fifty acres, more or less, being one half of the well known tract of land commonly called "Mason's Neck," situated on the Potomac, in the county of Fairfax, Virginia, is now offered for sale. About two-thirds of it is covered with an uncommon forest: growth of white and black oak, hickory, pine, poplar, &c. near the water's edge, whence it may be transported to the markets of the district of Columbia. (a distance of 20 miles only) where timber and fuel are always in demand, and without the expense and risk encountered in conveying those articles from situations further down the river; the remainder is in cultivation, and furnished with every necessary building for that purpose; together with orchards and a blacksmith's shop. The lot of improvements are a spacious and elegant dwelling-house, kitchen, dairy, smoke-house, office, ice-house, a well of excellent water, and a falling garden, of the most tasteful and costly design, filled with the rarest and most beautiful shrubberies and flowers, exotic and indigenous, all situated on an eminence, commanding a view of the rest of the tract, which extends in an unintercepted plain from the foot of the eminence to the Potomac and Occoquan, by which it is so far bounded as to render the expense of enclosing it comparatively nothing. The prospect, moreover, of the surrounding country, diversified in every direction by sheets of water, is really beautiful beyond description. There are likewise attached to this estate four valuable

Shad & Herring Fisheries.
however, the subscriber intends to reserve one of them and a few acres of land. The woods abound with deer in such numbers, that with a little care a gentleman might command a constant supply of venison for his table; and besides the large streams above mentioned, the various creeks and inlets that every where intersect the land are covered in the proper season with wild fowl of every description known in our waters. When to all these advantages is added the great natural fertility of the land, which is not exceeded perhaps in the western country, its adaptation to improvement by the use of plaster, which has been proved by experiment, its vicinity to society, to market, to two manufacturing grist-mills, to which the distance of conveyance by land and water is not more than 5 or 6 miles; it may with truth be pronounced the most valuable estate of the same extent, in the whole range of country watered by the Potomac. It will be sold entire or divided to suit purchasers.
The terms of sale will be one-third of the purchase money in hand, the remaining 2/3 in two equal annual payments, with interest from the day of sale, secured by a deed of trust on the land—which will be shown in my absence to any person disposed to purchase, by Mr. William Mason or Mr. Weston, residing on the premises.

Valuable Property for Sale.
THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling-house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable.
The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Potomac creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaster acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries, 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wildfowl, particularly canvas backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters may be addressed to me at Potomac Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

Gone to the Southward or Westward.
A YELLOW WOMAN, called Celia, a Dutchman, in the 23d year of her age, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high,—marked like moles on the right side of her face, which, with several letters on her left arm, were made with india ink. She is about four months gone in a state of pregnancy—followed her husband, Jim Clark, a yellow man, who was purchased from this place and taken away in company with a large number of slaves, about two weeks ago, by a man of the name of Basset. It is supposed they have gone to the westward: Celia was born free, and had with her a notarial certificate of her freedom, and description of her person. Her mother, the subscriber, is much afflicted by her manner of going away, and desires that any humane people who may chance to meet with her, will persuade her to return, being apprehensive that when she gets into a strange country, where she will be unknown and out of the reach of her friends and those who would be likely to protect her, attempts may be made by some avaricious and unprincipled persons, to deprive her of her liberty, and sell her for a slave. Should any such attempts be made, fifty dollars reward will be paid to any person who will communicate such information as shall lead to the conviction of the offenders, and the recovery of the woman.

NATHL. P. BIXBY & CO. respectfully inform their friends and the public generally, that they have taken that large and commodious store formerly occupied by the late Mr. Thomas Robinson, nearly opposite the Union Bank, Bridge-st. where they will transact all kinds of business in the Auction and Commission line; and as they are determined to give their exclusive attention to that business alone, those gentlemen who are disposed to employ them, have the best guarantee that they will be fairly dealt by. They flatter themselves that a punctual, diligent, and correct attention, together with their general knowledge of business, will secure to them at least an equal share of public patronage. Their intention is to avoid, as much as possible, retailing goods at auction. They are now prepared to receive goods of every description, to sell at public or private sale, and will attend to sales of property at any place within the town.

THE world has seen enough of warriors and of Heroes—enough of Statesmen—of men who have guided Armies in the field, or dictated as Sages in the Cabinet, for the exclusive purpose of Ambition. History from its earliest page to the present day, has offered to our contemplation, only ONE WASHINGTON, but ONE MAN, whose dangers, labors and labors in peace, were undertaken and supported with a single eye, to the benefit of his country; whose wonderful and honorable success, was the plain result of wisdom in design, and valor in execution; whom danger never appalled, nor defeat depressed; who, persevering in the justice of his cause, won Victory till he won her; who coveted no reward but the well earned approbation of those whose interest he lived to promote; who renounced all public honors, when they ceased to be the necessary instruments of good to the people, whose gratitude conferred them; who superior to all Monarchs, was content to be called the American Citizen. His career of glory through life was unstained by crime; and his death was felt as a loss by every individual of that community, whose political existence was the fruit of his exertions.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS of General Washington is the condensed result of long experienced, matured reflection and strong anxiety for the permanent prosperity of his country. His advice concerning the great importance of maintaining indissolubly the federal Union; the danger of indulging too much in party feelings;—the necessity of supporting public credit at home;—of maintaining public faith in all our transactions with foreign nations; of encouraging foreign intercourse free from foreign attachments;—are so many lessons of prudence which we should do well to bear in constant remembrance. Why therefore should not his legacy of wisdom and affection, be so published, as to admit of being constantly before our eyes? An ornament to our apartments, while it serves as a memento to guide our public feelings, and to manifest that the author lives in our memories?

To make it such, is the aim of the proposed Edition. The Publishers are determined that the Address shall be printed on paper of the same quality and size as the splendid edition of the Declaration of Independence now engraving, & shall in all respects be a companion worthy that great State paper.

As errors are known from various causes to find their way into the most important writings, the publishers feel it their duty, not only to satisfy themselves, but to satisfy the public, of the authenticity of the copy from which this splendid Edition of the Farewell Address shall be published.

Mr. GEORGE BRIDPORT will complete the Design; of which the following is an outline:—The introductory part of the Address, in highly finished ornamental penmanship, shall form the upper part;—the other parts of the plate, shall be appropriate ornaments;—in the centre below shall be engraved, from an historical design for this publication by Mr. Sully the Surrender of the British Army at York-town, October 19, 1781.

The Address itself shall be printed with type of a peculiar and appropriate character, designed for this purpose by Mr. Fairman, and to be cut and cast by our best artists. No more of the type shall be cast than will be necessary to execute this Address; & when it shall be completed, the type and the matrices in which it was cast shall be utterly destroyed; so that no other work shall ever be executed by the same letter which shall have printed the "FAREWELL ADDRESS" of him who lived and died, first in War; first in Peace, and first in the hearts of his Countrymen.

The paper, of the first quality, 36 by 26 inches, will be made by Mr. Amies. The text shall be carefully prepared, and of the best materials. The signature of General Washington from which it is proposed to execute a fac simile for this publication, is that which he affixed to the Constitution of the United States, when he signed it as President of the Convention in which it was framed; Thus associating and concentrating some of the greatest events in the life of this great man and in the history of his Country.

The ornamental writing will be designed and executed in the very best manner; the ornamental parts of the design and vignette, will be engraved by G. FAIRMAN; and the Typographical part executed by John Binns. They will take especial care of the execution of their several duties in this respect, and they will call to their aid, all that liberality, zeal and industry can command from the Sciences and Arts, so as to make the "Farewell Address" no mean specimen of the state of the Fine Arts in the United States.

As much progress has already been made in designing and procuring materials for this splendid edition of Gen. Washington's "Farewell Address," it is expected it will be ready for delivery, with the Splendid Edition of the Declaration of Independence, in the month of December next. That the public may have a more perfect view of the design and style of execution, than can be given in a proposal, of this Tribute to the memory of him who was "a Conqueror for the Freedom of his Country! A Legislator for its Security! A Magistrate for its Happiness!" it is not intended to solicit any Subscriptions until the Ornamental parts of the plate shall be executed. It will then be submitted for public inspection and public patronage, at five dollars a Copy, payable on the delivery of the Engraving. Philadelphia, July 31.
